GREAT WILL CASE FIGHT NOW ON

Several Robert William Holt Estate Heirs File Demurrer.

THEY PLEAD LACHES AGAINST CONTESTANTS

THIS MOVE OF RESPONDENTS WILL FORM OCCASION OF BRINGING THE CONTEST TO AN EARLY ISSUE.

Some of the beneficiaries of the will of the late Robert William Holt have joined in resistance of the attempt to break the instrument after the lapse of forty years. Part of the defense, as will be seen below, is to be on the ground of the time allowed to go by without calling in question the competency of the testator.

Represented by Robertson & Wilder as their attorneys, Hanakaulani Holt, R. William Holt, George Holt, Edward S. Holt, Christopher J. Holt and Eliza K. Richardson have entered a demurrer to the petition of James R. Holt, John D. Holt, John D. Holt Jr., Jas. L. Holt and John P. Colburn for revocation of the probate of the will of Robert William Holt, deceased, by the Supreme Court in the year 1862.

The respondents as a first ground say that the petitioners have not made or stated such a cause as entitles them to relief in respect to the matters set forth in their petition. Secondly, they say that it appears by the petition that the petitioners are estopped by their own laches and the laches of those under whom they claim from the right of being heard upon the matters set up in the petition.

Wherefore the respondents pray that the petition may be dismissed with costs.

The first blood will be drawn on demurrer, the hearing of which will probably be at an early date.

KAILUANI BACK AGAIN

The schooner Kailuani arrived in port yesterday afternoon at about 3 o'clock from Hawaii ports. The Kailuani is quite a stranger in this harbor, she being generally employed on the windward coast of Hawaii bringing sugar from the Hilo and Hamakua plantations to the windjammers in Hilo harbor.

Leaving Hilo, the Kailuani stopped at Oahu and Kaula, taking sugar on board. She then went to Kawaihewa from which place she took a load of cattle which were landed at the leper settlement. The Kailuani brings to this port a load of Oahu sugar consigned to Brewer & Co. This will be put on board the Andrew Welch. She also brings a load of Kaula sugar for Hackett & Co. This load will be put on board the bark Kaulani.

JUDGE GEAR DECIDES CUSTODY OF A CHILD

NEW BAIL BOND OF WM. SCHNEIDER ON APPEAL—INVENTORY OF THE ESTATE OF MARIA KOPENA.

Judge Gear on opening Circuit Court this morning was confronted with a Solomon's case, to wit: that of the custody of a child. He did not call for a chopping weapon to divide the innocent subject of controversy. Modern jurisprudence obligates such uncanny arbiters of disputes between man and man, or man and woman as in this case, J. M. Vivas appeared for a petition to place the child of John Gouveia and Lorinda, his divorced wife, under the guardianship of John's sister, A. G. Correa was present to oppose the petition but did not need to open his mouth. In the divorce proceedings there was nothing said about the custody of little Alfred, hence that matter had no place in the decree. The husband though disclaiming the fatherhood of the boy took him home with his new wife and there was no showing that he was not being well treated. Under these circumstances the court refused to interfere and dismissed the petition.

In the case of William Schneider, convicted of assault with a weapon, Judge Gear held that he bond to appear for trial had fulfilled its purpose and there was nothing left but to execute the sentence. He declined, however, to issue a bench warrant for the arrest of Schneider, as requested by Assistant Attorney General Douthett, the case being one for the sheriff. Mr. Creighton promised a new bond on appeal in the sum of $500 within a few hours, it having been sent to Wai-pahu yesterday afternoon for signatures of principal and surety. This was taken as satisfactory.

Malle Kekua, administratrix of the estate of Maria Kopena, has filed an inventory of the estate showing a valuation of $4147, of which $1000 represents land in Manoa.

LAUKEA NOT AFTER OFFICE

Editor Evening Bulletin:—As my name has been mentioned more than once, in the columns of your paper, as a possible party candidate for the Legislature, will you be good enough to announce to my political friends that I am not seeking Legislature honors, and under no consideration, if offered, will I accept a nomination to either branch of the Legislature. You may also say that I am not afflicted (or rather my bonnet is not) with the buzzing of an insect sometimes called the "Congressional bee." Should the affliction by any chance overtake me (and they say it is contagious) it will take more than five thousand a year to induce me to stand for the nomination.

C. P. LAUKEA.

Mr. Rhodes is one of the few men who have had statues in their lifetime. Many will no doubt be erected to him now that he is dead, but meanwhile a colossal figure in bronze of the maker of South Africa is standing in the studio of John Tweed of Chelsea, London. It was executed to the order of the citizens of Bulawayo, and is intended for the market place of that town.

Races and Baseball Game AT WAILUKU Prove a Great Success

The steamer Noeau arrived in port this morning at about 7:30 o'clock, safe and sound, and bringing the band of Honolulu sports, who went to Maui to witness the races and play baseball.

The steamship company took special pains to handle their precious cargo "with care" and only very few were seasick. The steamer landed the happy crowd at Malaea yesterday morning at about 5 o'clock, leaving that port again at 10 o'clock in the evening of the same day.

On the way home especially a good time was enjoyed by all hands on board. "Sonny" Cunha had his banjo and "Pat" Gleason his mandolin and these masterly artists entertained the company with a series of varied selections. Those who had no music in their souls found entertainment in various other ways.

From all accounts, the baseball game at Wells Park, Wailuku, yesterday, between the Maui and Honolulu teams was a memorable one in every respect and the Honolulu players have nothing but words of praise for their treatment by the Maui boys and the Maui people in general. From the time they landed until they took the boats for the steamer in the night, they were continually surrounded with a hospitality that the people of the other islands of the group would find hard to equal.

The most satisfactory part of the whole thing for the Honolulu team was that they won the game from the Mauis by a score of 11 to 4, but it was not done with any great ease, for the latter played 200 per cent better than they did in the game on the Punahoa grounds during Merchants' Fair week.

In fact, the Honolulu team, when they saw how the Mauis played in the first inning, did not feel so confident about things as they did when they first arrived upon the grounds.

The boys all went to the races at the Kahului track first, but left early for the game to get to Wells Park in time to compose themselves and prepare for the struggle.

The game was not called until 4:40 o'clock on account of the lateness of the arrival of the crowds from the races. When the game did finally start, there was found to be on the grounds something between four and five hundred people. When the gate receipts were counted afterwards, it was found that $106 had been taken in. Morris Keohokalohe of Honolulu acted as one of the umpires; J. Cottrell of Maui was the other.

It might be mentioned that this is the very largest amount of money that has ever been taken in at a baseball game on Maui, so the interest that was felt in the game can be imagined.

Of course, the crowd was with the Maui team as it should have been, but it is said to the credit of the Honolulu players present on the grounds, that they were by no means afraid to measure their lung power with that of the others. The Honolulu "rooters" did themselves proud, standing in a little bunch throughout the game and yelling at frequent intervals and in perfect accord.

The Maui people did their best in the coaching line to make their men win, but it was no go. The home players were unable to "get onto" Barney Joy's curves, and if they did hit the ball, there was always a Honolulu man somewhere around.

The Maui boys, it is said, played a most determined game. George Cummings behind the bat did all kinds of good work and surprised even his most ardent admirers. He split his hand again during the game but would not quit and continued to catch as if nothing had happened.

Jackson, the pitcher, did not succeed in doing much. He was so badly battered that it became necessary to take him out of the box and substitute R. C. Searle, the manager of the All-Maui team that came to Honolulu during the Merchants' Fair.

Cummings proved the heavy hitter for the Maui, one of his feats being owners their holdings can, in the course of five years, with judicious management have an income of at least $100,000 per annum.

"This can be secured, first by making a stock proof fence around the base and then by destroying all the goats and introducing improved breeds of cattle. Another thing would be the breeding of mules and it may be said in this connection that the Lanai mule already has a reputation for worth ahead of any other island bred mule. Lanai mules always command a ready sale.

"Cattle could be introduced that would eventually dress from seven to eight hundred pounds and sheep could be introduced that could be sold for nearly double the present price, simply from their size. I have been informed that the raising of hogs was a fine paying business not many years since.

"I saw growing there oranges, lemons, papayas, coffee, mangoes, figs and many other fruits and vegetables and near the dwelling of an old Hawaiian, as fine, green, vigorous sugar cane as one could find anywhere.

"I really believe that if one's desires run toward a sugar plantation, a very successful one could be developed there. It would certainly be one of the largest in the islands. Then there are growing on Lanai large quantities of a fine plant, some of which has been cleaned and samples sent to various places. I might say that some years ago a price of six cents per pound was offered for all that could be supplied.

"Lanai watermelons are a luxury that is well known here, the fruit being both large and of exceptional flavor.

"The ranch house stands at an elevation of 1750 feet according to the government map, and has a magnificent view, but to me the pleasantest experience was a cool atmosphere, making a couple of quilts a comfort, and the entire absence of mosquitoes. I saw none and heard but one. In short, it is an ideal place for a residence, and a splendid proposition for a fortune to be soon acquired by any enterprising person."

Dr. S. Wier Mitchell announces that he will take it easy this summer, having arranged to limit himself to writing a monograph on "Eosinophilia," a work on nervous disorders, to be published in three quarto volumes; a historical novel with Chad Anthony Wayne as the hero, and a few scattering short stories and poems for the Century.

a clean two-bagger. He also made other hits in tight places which helped his team out to a great extent.

For the Honolulu team, it might be said that Joy in the box and Cunha behind the bat, did the best work, although the other players did well everything that was expected of them. The Maui team played the following men: Jo, p; Cunha, c; Gleason, 1b; Louis, 2b; Williams, 3b; Thompson, ss; J. MacCallino, rf; Aylett, cf; and Hansman, lf.

Joy had things all his own way. He would throw straight balls for a time and when he found that the Maui men were getting too many hits, he would throw a few curves and settle his men in good shape. One of the Maui men said before the game that he would "settle Joy's hash" by batting him all over the field. This got to the Honolulu pitcher's ears and the consequence was that every time this particular man went to the bat he struck out.

Joy simply threw a whirlwind of a ball and Cunha himself admits that at one stage of the game, he had all he could do to hold him. This was particularly noticeable when Jackson, the Maui pitcher, went to the bat.

Full credit must also be given Cunha for his great work. He is undoubtedly the brainiest catcher in the league and the way he succeeded in keeping the Maui men on their bags was a caution.

As will be seen by the score by innings, there were no big tallies made in any one inning, showing how evenly both teams played.

A great many short flies were made owing to the stiff breeze that was blowing. This was naturally hard for the batters, but favorable to the fielders, and accounts for there being few or errors than usual.

The score by innings was as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Honolulu	1	4	1	1	0	1	2	1	0	—11
Maui	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	1	—4

MANY ASSAULT CASES

JAPANESE SENT TO JAIL IN SPITE OF HIS WIFE

ASSAULTED WOMAN WITH PAIR OF SCISSORS—AN EPIDEMIC AMONG THE MIKADO'S SUBJECTS PREVAILING.

In the Police Court this morning Japanese cases of assault with a weapon were the principal feature. The Japanese have, during the last few days, developed a startling tendency toward cutting one another and the work of the police to down this epidemic is hampered considerably by the fact that the Japanese stick together and are loath to see any of their countrymen get the punishment which they deserve.

Isihashi, whose case came up this morning, had assaulted his wife, Mio, with a pair of scissors, inflicting quite an ugly wound in her head. Mio came before the court weeping bitterly. She leaned over the rail of the clerk's desk and shed copious tears into Bennie Zablan's ink and glue pots. She explained that she did not want to have her husband punished. The High Sheriff, however, requested the court that Isihashi be given a substantial sentence. He had cut his wife quite badly and had chased her with the shears in his hand, being prevented from doing her still more serious harm only by the intervention of a couple of neighbors.

The tendency among the Japanese to use dangerous weapons in their disputes had lately developed in an alarming manner and it would be necessary to punish this offender as an example to others who had this same unhappy tendency to use weapons. The court sentenced Isihashi to four months' imprisonment at hard labor.

A Sao was charged with having assaulted Shirao with a knife. Yesterday defendant had tried to collect a bill from Shirao and on the latter's refusal to pay, he had jumped him. Shirao went to the police station and swore to a warrant for the arrest of the defendant.

This morning Shirao had, however, undergone a complete change of heart. He stood up on the witness stand with a meek and humble air and in his pocket and explained that as A. Sao was a very particular friend of his, he did not wish to prosecute him.

They had patched up the matter out of court. He denied the Deputy Sheriff's imputation that he had been paid to drop the case and proceeded to de-lend his new found friend with warmth. He stated that while A. Sao had assaulted him, he did not think he had cut him with a knife. He had fallen during the scrap and had probably hurt himself in the fall.

The Deputy Sheriff made the Japanese show the wound to the court. It was a large and ugly cut in the middle of his back but still Shirao maintained that he had got it in his fall. He was then made to swear to a complaint of assault and battery on which charge A. Sao was sentenced to four months' imprisonment with hard labor.

Namura, charged with riding a bicycle in a heedless manner, and John Thomas, charged with profanity, were discharged.

Shimohara paid $5 for leaving his horse untied. Ah Young, charged with assault with a weapon, had his case nolle pro'd. A number of cases were continued, most of them in order to await action of the Grand Jury.

FAREWELL TO MERRY

A dinner to Admiral Merry was given by Captain Harriman of the Alameda aboard that steamer last evening. Miss Pauline Neumann and Mrs. H. W. Lake were also special guests. A quiet club was present during the dinner and sang and played Hawaiian music. Those at the dinner were: Admiral Merry, Miss Pauline Neumann, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Lake, Mrs. W. F. C. Hanson, Col. Girard, U. S. A.; the Misses Girard, Miss Downing, Miss Davis, Miss Williams, Captain U. S. G. White, U. S. N.; Mrs. White, Miss Widemann, George Rodiek, Mr. Klamp, Mr. Krouse.

After the dinner the guests were driven to the Hawaiian hotel where a delightful dance in honor of Admiral Merry was given by Mr. and Mrs. Lake. Among those present at the dance were Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Perkins, Mrs. J. S. McGrew, Mrs. Macfarlane, Miss Hamburger, Mr. and Mrs. Hays, Mrs. Marx, Miss Alice Gillet, Southard Hoffman, Ogden Hoffman, Mr. Hamburger, Samuel S. White, Mr. Lancaster, Mr. and Mrs. Bush, Lieut. Newton, U. S. A.; Scott Seton.

The working of a coal mine some four miles distant by electric current generated by means of blast furnace gases is a recent engineering achievement. The gases are used to drive a gas engine generating unit furnishing current at 1900 volts, which pressure is transformed up to 10,000 volts and used at this pressure for an endless rope haulage plant. It is stated that the cost of mine haulage under this system is 1 per cent per ton mile.
